“ I met Ed back in 2003 when I joined James River Insurance Company. He was so welcoming to the company, and made me feel at home with this start-up insurance company.

He found out that I had an interest in quilting and shared that his wife, Karen is a quilter and connected the two of us. Both Ed and Karen are generous with their time and welcoming to new people.

Ed was always mentoring, thoughtful and kind. He was a pleasure to work with over the years. He set the example of doing good business!

I know that he will be missed by many of his co-workers, friends and family. I feel blessed to have known him.

“ Ed was friends with my dad Jim Pickett, who died suddenly of a heart attack in 1998. At that time we were a small company with only 6 or 7 employees. Many people told me to close up shop and tried to take advantage of the situation, but not Ed. He promised to help me keep his market and he I know he put in good words with others. It meant the world to my family, the business and me. His kind deeds gave me hope and courage to weather not just that storm but many others. The world has lost a very kind and generous man. Thank you Ed!

“ I first met Ed during a round of marketing visits in Richmond Virginia back in 2007. I believe he was working for a company called Alterra at the time. It was clear at the time there would not be a business fit between our respective companies, but nonetheless I took an immediate liking to Ed and we stayed in touch over the course of several years. I would talk with him on the phone and run into him at industry functions from time to time. Upon hearing of his passing, I've spent several days thinking of him, his family, and what a loss it is for all of us. In this day of age, we need more like him...

Why did I like Ed? Well, for starters I found him to be the genuine article. He had no ego, no hate, no agenda, and wherever he went, a sense of humor was certain to follow. Ever the thoughtful family man, he was crazy about his Irish Setters (we are both dyed in the wool dog lovers) and even crazier about his daughters. His eyes would light up when the conversation turned to family matters. He did it right....family first and career second....so many people miss the mark on that critical point.

To the family: We share in your loss and mourn the man who made such a positive and endearing mark in our lives. May God bless him and keep him close. I look forward to seeing him again.

“ Mr. Neuberger was my second dad growing up. He was always so welcoming to me no matter what state he lived in :) and when I went off to college to play soccer, he followed my career and always asked me or congratulated me and made an effort to keep up with me and also ask about my family every time I saw him. This has been a tough loss for me and I think about him and the Neuberger's often. I love you guys.

“ The memory and take away I have the was most admirable was clearly how radiant/loving he was in the role of a father and grandfather. He would talk about his trips to New Orleans and Virginia with such a gleam, that you would be excited for him. Ed had a level of curiosity that was so flipping funny and admirable, too...he loved "going home at lunch to check on the girls" (his dogs) and loved that his wife was a great partner in supporting his excursions that would bring him to be exactly what he wanted to be. I am sure he will be missed by a lot of people, and deservingly so. They are gonna have to think about a real weird role for Ed in heaven. They just better have his job duties include being around sweets, dogs, kids and include his metal detector and antique war memorabilia, lol. Have fun Ed on this next chapter of life.

“ Karen, Dave and I were so sorry to hear of your loss (Maggie called me). It is sad that we have been out of touch for so long and never had the chance to meet Ed. When you're feeling up to it, I would love to talk to you. Until then, please know that you and your daughters are in our thoughts. Love, Dave and Monica Penninger.

“ He was Ed to so many, to me he was just Butch . We played together a lot in our childhood.and I remember so much of those years.Time has a way of passing and we all go our separate ways in life in other country's and states. How sad we lose sight of time as we age.

Butch was a great persons and cousin, his memory will forever be ingrained in my mind.

“ I miss you, Ed.

Life thows a lot of challenges at us. You were no stranger to that reality. But you always seemed to meet those brickbats with a calm equanimity. Maybe that is what made you such a great leader, of family, of teams, of friendship circles. You cared; it was written all over you. You avoided the courrupting contagion of anger when life took a difficult turn. You stayed engaged when others withdrew. You kept the faith. Bless you, as you have blessed those around you.

Thank you for your friendship, Ed.
