Virginia was born in Chicago and moved to Nokomis, FL after her husband's retirement. She worked part-time in the Venice, FL Publix until the age of 85. She loved her job and had many friends there, both customers and employees.

St. George Village in Roswell, GA became her home after she decided to move closer to her daughter and family. She loved living there and had many wonderful friends.

Gardening was her greatest hobby and she had a huge garden at St. George with flowers and vegetables. She would always share her delicious tomatoes with others. Her garden was beautifully arranged with walkways and a large statue of St. Francis. She loved nature, birds and especially butterflies.

Books were another thing that she loved. She usually read three books at any given time and commented that she read almost every book in the St. George library.

She was a fabulous cook and loved to cook huge meals for her family and friends when they visited. Many of her treasured recipes have been passed down for us to enjoy.

Virginia was loved by all of us and will be dearly missed.
