“ Growing up, some of my favorite memories are going to Grandma Hall's house on Sundays after church for supper with the family. I was a real picky eater in my youth, so I wouldn't always love the meal. But no matter what, Grandma always had something just for me (usually Cheese Puffs) because she loved me.

I fondly remember Easter egg hunts with my sister and cousins at Grandma's. As the eldest grandchild, I did quite well! And when the whole Hall family gathered together, like on Thanksgiving, I enjoyed hearing Grandma swap stories with Aunt Macie, my dad (Richard Hall), and Uncle Ron. Grandma wasn't always the biggest talker, and in later years, it was difficult for us to carry on a conversation, but she always listened to me, doted on me (she loved to take me out to Red Lobster, and order me extra cheese biscuits!), and I know she loved me dearly. I will miss her very much. I love you, Grandma.
