“ Dear Mom,

It would be impossible to put into words what you mean to me, and the rest of your family and friends. You lived a life filled with things you loved, family and friendship always being at the top of the list. You dedicated much of your time to your church and helping others, and the calls and messages we are getting daily are a testimonial to how many people you touched, and how many of us love you so much.

These last couple of years were especially tough as we watched you struggle with a disease that is so terrible and stole precious memories from you, but I know through it all, you know how much you are loved and how much of an impact you made on so many people.

You worked so hard to raise us and provide for us when we were young. You made sure we were always taken care of and felt loved. Our family reunions, hiking trips with friends and family, your love of the water are all things that I cherish too. I learned these things from you and I will continue to love and enjoy them in your honor and memory. But probably the most important traits I learned from you are kindness and love. You made such an impact on all of us with the way in which you treated others. I am far from perfect, but I strive to be kind to all those around me and love others the way you loved us. So many people have told me these last couple of days about the lasting impact you made on them. Your thoughtfulness, your ability to always be there for them and how loved they felt when they were around you. You changed people's lives for the better, and all of us who knew you are better people today because of it.

I know I'm a little biased here, you did give me the gift of life after all. But I recently heard there are only one or two true miracles in life most of us will actually experience, the birth of a child being one of them. So thank you for being my mom, for giving me the gift of life.

Thank you for telling Jay and I that the best thing that ever happened to you were your two sons. I look at my little boy, the best thing that ever happened to me, and I tell him all the time, grandma was right Wyatt. You are the best thing that ever happened to me. And I will teach him what you taught me mom, we are raising him to care for others and be kind. He has your hair AND your appetite mom, the kid loves food, second only to you! I am so sad that you won't get to watch him grow and you won't be here to love on him and cook for him and take him to the beach. But he will always know how much his grandma loves him, and I hope you could hear his little voice in your last days when he said I love you Mimi.

I love you mom, I hope all of your lost beautiful memories are flooding back in now, and you are surrounded by the love and light of those who went before, and those of us you left behind. I will miss you every day mom, but you gave me everything I need to succeed. Until we meet again, I love you mom. Your son,

Scott
