“ I first met Joe 38 years ago, when I started dating his lovely daughter. I initially thought him to be a very stern and hard man. Soon after marrying Carmen Abdilla, the real Joe started to make himself known to me.

It was all an act designed to make clear to me, that I may not be worthy of having his daughter for my wife. I therefore made it my life's work to one day become worthy of having Carmen as my soul mate. Still don't know if I deserve his daughter however, he let me marry her anyway! For this I am truly grateful.

Turns out he was one of the kindest, generous and loyal men I have ever had the pleasure of knowing. I never had to ask him for anything. He was always there for our family. I remain thankful for becoming part of his family.

The Son-In-Law*
