“ My dear friend,

I went to your house tonight just to be close to you. There was a need to smell the aroma and to feel the comfort I will always remember. At first I couldn't understand why I needed to be there. But when sister, Nancy, talked about the comfort she felt coming there, I understood. I came to your house for different reasons, but one for sure thing I could always count on was comfort. No matter if I was there for a problem or just to share time with you, it always felt comforting. I wish you could only know how much you gave to your friends, either baby sitting our children, baby sitting us while our husbands were out of town, or simply just being the best friend anyone could have. I love you and miss you.
