“ I heard of Laura's passing, through our OLD PAULEAN grapevine, sadly only today, FIFTEEN years too late! We both, together with her also attractive sister, Anamaria Ranieri, went to our British School in São Paulo, Brazil - St Paul's School.

Laura and I had but two important things in common... we were both born in August 1948, and we were both popular students in 1962>1964. Laura, of course, was by far the most attractive!

By way of this rather late and sad moment, I would like to express my condolences to her now rather extensive family. That said I would be pleased if Anamaria should wish to contact me, here in Brasil. I am in FaceBook, and also in Whatsapp... under Martin Andrew Prowse, Brasil. Thank you for this opportunity... Martin (hiding in sunny, windy, Ceará)!

“ I didn't think I would post anything but each time I go back and look through the pictures and remember the wonderful memories, I feel like I would be doing my wonderful mother an injustice. She was not only a dedicated and loving mother, but an incredible person who gave so much of herself. I know this pain in my heart will become less painful with the passage of time but it will never go away. She was my mom, my best friend, my sounding board, and my confidence keeper. I miss her so much I feel at times as though I can't breathe. I have to keep moving forward. I have four great kids and an incredibly supportive husband to keep me going. But the journey is mine alone to take. I'm so grateful for the cards and condolences I have received. She touched so many peoples lives and I know she left the world a better place. Now I am left with an incredibly huge hole in my heart but I am thankful for every minute I had with her. Thank you mom for teaching me how to be a loving and caring mother and person.

“ Laura was always a bright spot in the day. She was always cheerful and helpful to anyone. She was a true professional and very well respected by all. She had such an endearing way about her. When you think of Laura it always makes you smile. She will be missed dearly.
