“ We, Evelyn and Pete Murphy, express our condolences to Pauline’s family.

We met Pauline in an unusual way and became true friends. Learning her through the many time we played cards. She was truly a pleasant and a loving person to know. The group of people we played cards with gained a love from her and a love for her. We’ll miss our conversations by phone after she left Douglasville. We had great conversation about all that was going on in the world. Also, about what was happening on our favorite British shows. She will be missed by all. Goodbye Pauline, we won’t forget you.

“ It was such a pleasure to see Mrs Cameron when she came in to the salon with her kind and sweet daughter in law, Nancy. Mrs Cameron was always there with a smile and loved having her hair permed. Nancy always took great pains to see that “Mom” had her favorite tea, scones and other favorites foods to watch her British shows. Her presence will be missed by many, but that’s where memories are so important. Blessings and hugs to the family at this time

“ My most sincere condolences to family of Mrs. Cameron a wonderful woman that I truly loved! Her kindness, sense of humor and the ability to tell a great story was like no other, especially with that wonderful accent, will not be forgotten. She introduced me to Agatha Christy with a box full of her own paper back books and because of those books, my youngest daughter and I never missed an episode of any Hercule Poirot on the PBS, which to this day I cannot pronounce Hercule Poirot correctly, must be the accent or lack there of.

I met her through two other wonderful people her daughter, Susan and son, Robert, when the three of us attended high school together some 40 years ago. I think it was during this time that my Mom became her hair dresser, which gave us another connection. She was at my wedding, came to our small apartment, with Mrs. Hall, with a baby gift for our first child and a lovely wooden spoon, decorated with flowers, it was an English tradition of some sort, can't remember the exact meaning now but the thought that they would think to give me this gift, just delighted me!

Over the years I heard all about her older son, Stephen, who I finally met, even thought I felt as though I already knew him when we did met.. I have heard wonderful stories about her brother John, although I haven't met him, I'm quite sure he as colorful as Ms. Cameron.

I will miss our conversations at the kitchen table and phone calls that came later after she moved and even though I will miss those conversation I will never forget the ones we had and I will never forget her. I hope that she will always be with me as I know she will be with all those wonderful people that she made clear, through our talks, of her love and pride for all of those that make up her family. I know first hand how much she loved and cherished them all.

Hi Desiree,

Would you happen to have Pauline's son's address? My dad told me yesterday of Pauline's passing so I'd like to send them something since I'm in New Jersey and can't attend the services.

Xoxo,

Tessa :)
