“ My sister, Susie is the most beautiful, courageous person I've ever known. She is my mentor, best friend, and I will keep her in my heart always. She is all around me in so many ways. I know I will see her again, along with our mother, and knowing they are together helps me live my life without her. Give me strength, Booty. I love you, Pammy

Losing my best friend of 56 years is devastating. We had so much planned for the future.. (like finally being neighbors), traveling, and just hanging out together! She will be with me forever until we meet again. RIP “ Gitte” 🥺🙏

Dear Pammy and Tammy - I am so sorry for the loss of Susie. I did not know her well, but certainly knew the two of you and your wonderful mom during our school years. There are no words to lessen your grief, but please know that warm thoughts and prayers are being sent your way at this sad time. Please take care.

It is with an intense and profound sadness that I have come to know that Susan- my very first friend in NYC- has passed away from the cancer she was battling. Susan was the kindest, warmest, most dear person I met when I first came to the city in the early 80's. I interviewed for the position of resource librarian at CNI and was late because I didn't know how to navigate the NYC subway system. I had recently spilled coffee on my cream colored skirt and had tried to get rid of the stain. I arrived at the interview completely disheveled. Susan took me in like a loving older sister and navigated me through my interview. I got the job! I tribute that primarily to Susan's kindness. Over the years I learned so much from her! I loved working with her and all of the designers at CNI. I felt I was at the best firm in the best city ever. The work stories and "after hours" stories with Susan I will remember always. Her loving family, her beautiful sisters and friends, her gorgeous daughter, her cherished husband, she was such a treasure, and my heart is broken. I will reread every letter (with her most beautiful handwriting!) and every Christmas cards that we exchanged- I have saved them all. With sincere condolences, and with love love always...Leslie Larm-Ashton
